SCOUTING INDY ELEVEN

Coming into Saturday night in 8th place in the Eastern Conference and six points behind FC Tulsa in the standings, Indy Eleven has its work cut out for it to make the playoffs in 2022. Indy has not won a match since June 4, making it 11 outings for the club without a victory. Tied for the third-lowest goal tally and owning the lowest shot total in the USL Championship, it's clear to see Indy has struggled offensively this season. The Indianapolis side is also still searching for its first win over any club currently above it in the Eastern Conference standings at kickoff. In his first season with Indy after spending 2021 with Austin Bold FC, Stefano Pinho leads the club with seven goals and is tied with USL Championship legend Solomon Asanté with three assists.

JULY 5 MOVE

Saturday's matchup will mark Sean Lewis' ONEOK reunion with the FC Tulsa supporters. Lewis was traded to Indy Eleven back on July 5 in exchange for wing-back Noah Powder. Since the trade, Lewis has made four starts for Indy, allowing eight goals with 18 saves for a 75% save pct. Although all the blame does not fall on Lewis, he is 0W-3L-1D in between the posts with his new club. For Tulsa, Powder has also made four starts, scoring once with six crosses and four interceptions made. The matchup makes it back-to-back matches in which Tulsa faces off against a club that it previously executed a trade with earlier in the season (Miami FC last week in which the clubs swapped Joaquín Rivas for Sean McFarlane).

PLAYOFF RACE

Coming off what FC Tulsa players described as a "must-win" match on August 10, Tulsa has put itself right back into the playoff mix. Detroit City FC and Miami FC are the two clubs in FC Tulsa's sights, leading the black and gold by nine and 11 points respectively. When determining strength of schedule based on remaining opponents' win percentage, FC Tulsa has the easiest remaining schedule to close out the year, Miami has the second easiest, and Detroit has the most difficult. All three clubs are in action on Saturday as Detroit City hosts Louisville City FC at 6:30 p.m. CT, and Miami FC is on the road at Hartford Athletic for a 6:00 p.m.

POWDER ON THE BOARD

In his fourth start for FC Tulsa back on August 10, Noah Powder scored his first goal for his new Oklahoma club. His goal marked the 12th score of the defender's USL Championship career to go along with seven assists at just 23 years old. When pairing Powder (six chances created with FC Tulsa through four appearances) on the left with right wing-back Sean McFarlane (who has two assists and five chances created for Tulsa through five appearances), FC Tulsa has constructed one of the most dangerous attacks from the wing that the USL Championship has to offer.

DONOVAN RICKETTS
INTERIM HEAD COACH

All-time Record4W-4L-1D

The legendary Jamaican goalkeeper, Donovan Ricketts, was named the interim head coach of FC Tulsa on June 17, 2022. A USSF “B” license holder, Ricketts served as the FC Tulsa First Assistant coach and goalkeepers coach before being named interim head coach in mid June.

Ricketts’ goalkeeping résumé speaks for itself. One of the greatest players in Jamaican National Team history, Ricketts made more than 80 appearances for his country on the international stage, often serving as his country’s captain. He competed in numerous CONCACAF tournaments including numerous Gold Cups and 2010 World Cup qualifying. He was a member of Jamaica’s 1998 World Cup team.

His club career was just as prolific, as he spent time professionally playing in Jamaica, England and the U.S. He recorded over 100 appearances in England for Bradford City A.F.C. in English League One.

Ricketts is likely best known for his time in MLS as one of the greatest keepers in league history. He was named the MLS Goalkeeper of the Year twice and won an MLS Cup in 2011 with LA Galaxy.
